JAPANESE tattoo

Japanese tattoo style, (commonly referred to as Irezumi, Wabori or Harimono) is a traditional style of tattooing that originated in Japan. This style is easily recognized by its characteristic motifs, bold shading, and readability.

The aesthetics and subject matter of these works are said to have evolved from woodblock prints of the Ukiyo-e era in Japan.

NEO-TRADITIONAL TATTOO

Motifs from Ukiyo-e Japanese prints, Art Nouveau, and Art Deco are all art movements that inform and influence Neo-Traditional tattoos.

Neo-Traditional tattoos are known for their dense and richly sumptuous aesthetic that often depict flowers, portraits of women, animals, and more.

GEOMETRIC TATTOO

The popularity of the geometric tattoo is not a mere trend thing these tattoos hold great behind behind the simple lines and shapes. These tattoos only look simple, even though their composition holds great beauty.

Geometric tattoos draw their simplicity from the use of common shapes – lines, circles squares, triangles.

FINE LINE TATTOO

Fine line tattoos are often softer in shading as well as more delicate in their linework than other types of tattoos. To get a fine line tattoo, both experts say that the tattoo artist will either use a single needle or combinations of small needles.

THIRD EYE TATTOO PARLOUR COSMETIC TATTOO

Permanent makeup refers to cosmetic tattoos that help you recreate your favorite makeup looks in a semipermanent manner. Chances are, you've already heard of microblading. Thanks to an exponentially exploding interest in brows over the past few years, the eyebrow-tattooing technique has gone mainstream.

PET & ANIMAL TATTOO

Tattoos are generally meant to symbolize something for the wearer. Animal tattoo designs are a good choice if you want your tattoo to hold a specific meaning. Each animal has a distinct symbolism. These tattoos are not gender-specific and can be inked anywhere on the body.
